Colonel Christian Jacob Hutter and Descendants.

The Easton Sentinel.

The Easton Centinel, the ninth newspaper founded at Easton and the oldest English journal with practically a continuous existence to this day, was first issued July 1, 1817, and is therefore over 86 years of age. It was founded by Christian Jacob Hutter, and was for many years issued as the English edition of the Northampton Correspondent (also founded and edited by Mr. Hutter), and consequently promulgated the principles of Jeffersonian Democracy. Its motto was: "Faithful, active, vigilant and steady," and its declaration:

> "Here shall the press the people's rights proclaim, > Unawed by influence and unbribed by gain."

Mr. Hutter, on October 19, 1821, transferred the publication of the Centinel to his twin sons, Henry August and Frederick William, because of financial embarrassments brought about by the failure of his patrons to meet their obligations. The Centinel was published under the firm name of Henry & William Hutter until August 23, 1833, though the former died March 1, 1824, closely followed by the death of his brother on December 21, 1824. The death of these promising young men was a severe blow to the parents, to whom they were the main hope of their declining years; friends lost in them esteemed companions, and the community two honored citizens.

On August 23, 1833, Frederick William Muller, son-in-law of the elder Hutter, became the publisher of the Centinel. Beginning with the second half year of his editorial connection therewith (February 21, 1834), a new heading was adopted and a change made in the orthography of the title. Ever since its establishment it had been spelled Centinel, the then prevailing method; custom, however, had altered it to Sentinel, which was then adopted.

In the Spring of 1839, Abraham Henry Senseman purchased the Sentinel from Mr. Hutter, who for several years previous had conducted it. Mr. Senseman was a native of the neighboring village of Nazareth and had established there in the summer of 1837, in partnership with Edmund Leisenring (afterwards editor of the Allentown Frieden's Bothe) the Abend Zeitung (Evening Gazette), which was published about a year and a half—the six months alone by Mr. Senseman, a gentleman of strong character and intelligence. In June, 1841, Mr. Senseman sold the Sentinel to James M. Porter, Esq., who engaged Thomas Forsman, who had been a foreman printer on the Sentinel, to edit it. It subsequently passed into the hands of a Mr. Allen, then suspended publication for about six months, when, about 1844, it passed into the hands of James A. Dunlap.

On December 19, 1851, Daniel H. Neiman became the owner, and for more than thirty-one years issued it regularly, contributing something to it each week, no matter whether at home or at distant points on other business. In the last week of April, 1883, J. P. Correll, now well known in journalistic circles in connection with several of the leading newspapers of the city of Easton, became the owner and editor of the Sentinel and continues as such.

Christian Jacob Hutter, Founder.

Christian Jacob Hutter, the founder of this newspaper, as well as of three other local journals and a book publishing house, was born on May 17, 1771, at New Deitendorf, in Saxe Gotha, Germany. His father, Johann Ludwig Hutter, born May 5, 1726, at Frishborn on the Vogelsberg, was a manufacturer of leather, and managed a large tannery for the Moravian brethren. He was married in 1767 to Anna Maria Kuntz, born March 5, 1729. In 1773 he located at Zeist, in the Province of Utrecht in the United Netherlands, with his wife and two sons, the youngest of whom was Christian Jacob. Here he also met with success in his business, and was considered a man of fortune. He died on March 23, 1791, and his wife on September 30, 1805. The elder son, Johann Ludwig, (born January 24, 1769, died September 4, 1820), continued the business of his father.

The youngest son, Christian Jacob Hutter, was, on October 20, 1789, sent by the Moravians of Zeist to their American settlement at Bethlehem, Pa., where he engaged in business and where, on August 4, 1791, he married his first wife, Maria Magdalene Huber.

In 1799 we find Mr. Hutter at Lancaster, where he founded Der Lancaster Correspondent, the first number of which was issued May 25, 1799, and the last on September 3, 1803, whereupon he removed to Easton and founded there, early in 1806, Der Northampton Correspondent, to which journal he transferred the motto of his Lancaster venture—"Frey, Standhaft and Gemaszigt."

On August 10, 1808, he established the Pennsylvania Herald and Easton Intelligencer, which lived two years, and was followed by The People's Instructor, also probably short-lived. The Centinel was his fourth journalistic venture, but after his financial reverses in 1821, he gave little personal attention to journalism, his sons and sons-in-law having succeeded him.

Mr. Hutter, in addition to his newspaper interests, was engaged in a variety of mercantile pursuits, but chiefly as an apothecary. He also took an active interest in military and political matters. He was actively engaged in the War of 1812 as a Lieutenant-Colonel in command of the Northampton, Lehigh and Pike Counties' Militia. From 1822 to 1825 he was a member of the State House of Representatives, and in 1829 was County Recorder of Deeds. He was one of the founders and the first Worshipful Master of Easton Lodge of Masons.

Colonel Christian J. Hutter's Descendants.

Colonel Hutter, by his marriage, August 4, 1791, with Maria Magdalene Huber (born March 30, 1769, died December 7, 1804), had issue as follows:

(1) Charles Lewis Hutter, born May 25, 1792, died September 22, 1830. Early in the century he published Der Unabhangige Republikaner und Lecha County Freiheits Freund at Allentown. July 19, 1812, he married Maria Wilson (born Aug. 12, 1791), and had issue as follows:

(A) Edwin Wilson Hutter, born in Allentown, Pa., September 12, 1813. At the age of seventeen, on the death of his father, he assumed the editorial management of his father's two newspapers. Subsequently he removed to Harrisburg, where he was editor of another newspaper, The Keystone. For some time he resided in Lancaster, after which he was Private Secretary to Hon. James Buchanan. He then studied for the ministry in Baltimore and was called to the pastorate of St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Philadelphia, where he remained until his death, September 21, 1873. He married Elizabeth Shindel, and had issue as follows: Christian Jacob Hutter, and James Buchanan Hutter, both of whom died without issue.

(B) Maria Huber Hutter, born January 20, 1816; married July 19, 1836, to Robert Emmet Wright (born at Carlisle, Pa., November 30, 1810, died January 10, 1886); died September 6, 1901. Robert Emmet Wright entered upon the study of law at Allentown, Pa., and on September 5, 1838, was admitted to practice. He took rank among the leaders of the Bar, and at his death was recognized as Lehigh County's most prominent and esteemed citizen. He was twice appointed District Attorney by Attorney General J. K. Kane, and was twice appointed to the office of Postmaster at Allentown. He was appointed Reporter of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania by Gov. Wm. F. Packer, in 1860, and continued in that honorable office until 1866. He was the author of Wright's Index of Supreme Court Reports. There was issue born of this marriage as follows:

J., entered upon the study of law at Easton, Pa., in the office of General Peter Ihrie, and was admitted to the bar in 1828. He soon took high rank in his profession, and at the time of his death was recognized as the foremost lawyer of Eastern Pennsylvania. In 1859, Henry Green, Esq., afterward Chief Justice of Pennsylvania, became his law partner, the firm title being Reeder & Green. In 1854 he was appointed, by President Franklin Pierce, entirely without solicitation on his part, the first Governor of the Territory of Kansas. He was removed by the President because of his refusal to aid the pro-slavery men of Kansas to make it a slave state. He was elected the first delegate to Congress from Kansas, but was denied his seat upon a technicality. On March 15, 1856, he was elected United States Senator from Kansas, but the Constitution of the State not being ratified, the election was set aside. In May, 1856, he was compelled to make his escape from the Territory in disguise to save his life from the pro-slavery mob which had seized possession of the Territorial Government. He returned to Easton, Pa., and resumed the practice of law. Was Delegate to the Republican National Conventions of 1860 and 1864. At the Republican National Convention of 1860 he received the third highest vote for Vice President, as the "running mate" of Abraham Lincoln.
